

Emotional skills and awareness of natural world.

Social, academic (concentration and observation skills) environmental, I think he benefits from working in smaller groups too.

She's told me about the bugs and leaves and how much she enjoyed exploring in the trees. And that was without me asking.

In all ways.

Confidence, learning new skills, being in nature he's told us about making story stick and a nest for birds and collecting stones.

Learning about nature, comes back excited and engaged with the new skills he's learnt.
